Paula Forbes Leaves Bush Foundation July 30

Paula Forbes came to the Foundation in 2009 and brought with her both legal experience and expertise in problem solving and consensus building. In the past year, she's focused her time on efforts to connect with the more than 2,200 Bush Fellows and engage their considerable skills and experience toward achieving the Foundation's Goals for a Decade. Forbes also played important roles in experiments that have led to the Foundation's sharpened emphasis on courageous leadership and its decision to focus on redesigning public services to ensure the future vitality of the people and communities the Foundation serves.

"My time at the Bush Foundation has been rewarding," Forbes said, "but now I'm excited to return to my long-time passions—legal services, cultural competency, conflict resolution and leadership development in the community."

Bush Foundation Vice President Pamela Wheelock said, "Paula has a fabulous set of skills that have been invaluable to us this past year. As the Foundation begins a new focus on the redesign of public services and Paula moves in a new direction to pursue what she truly loves, all of us at the Foundation wish her the best."
